

In a nutshell, CAMDS is the Chinese version of the IMDS. It is a web-based application and holds recycling data for end-of-life vehicles for the Chinese market. It works in a similar way to the IMDS. It aims to ensure that manufacturers, external suppliers, and importers observe the quota for reuse and do not use certain materials or only use them to a limited extent. The goal is to improve recycling rates for Chinese automotive parts.

>> OBJECTIVE

You know the background and goals of China Automotive Material Data System (CAMDS) and understand your data-responsibility as a link in the supply chain. You are familiar with the application and use of the CAMDS and you are able to use its most important functions.

Your advantage: After completing the training, you will understand your obligations under the CAMDS, be able to create and report data accurately and securely, and thereby ensure that you efficiently comply with legal requirements in China and maintain your marketability.
